Flavour festival celebrates regional produce

Fabulous flavour from the Great Southern takes centre stage in April as Taste Great Southern rolls out its 2019 festival program.

Great Southern Development Commission (GSDC) Chair Ross Thornton said the festival was a powerful enticement for people to visit the region this month.

“Taste Great Southern brings talented chefs and cooks together to explore their creativity with the finest ingredients from the region,” Mr Thornton said.

“The result is a feast for the senses and a showcase for the quality produce of the Great Southern.

“The GSDC supports Taste because it promotes our wonderful food and beverages, and it further develops tourism in the region.

“People love having the opportunity to connect with the Great Southern’s productive soils, our clean air and water, and our wild ocean,” Mr Thornton said.

Taste Great Southern is supported by $25,000 in State Government funding through the GSDC in the Regional Economic Development grant program, along with funding through Tourism WA.
